

Yuko Sakita, Journalist and Environmental counselor

Graduated from Rikkyo University. Freelance journalist after working at a publisher. Contributing to the development of the community with sustainable environment and energy from a consumer perspective. President of NPO GENKI Net for Creating a Sustainable Society. Representative Director of NPO Shinjuku environmental activity network. Appointed as a local government committee for Environment Council of Tokyo and Fukushima as well as a government member of committee, Central Environment Council formed by Ministry of the Environment, Advisory Committee for Natural Resources and Energy by Ministry of Economy, Trade and Industry, National Land Development Council by Ministry of Land, Infrastructure and Transport, and Advisory Committee on Nuclear Damage Compensation System by Cabinet Office. She also serves as a visiting research scholar of Waseda University and member of Town planning and sustainability committee of the Tokyo Organizing Committee of the Olympic and Paralympic Games.

Working on the risk communication in radiation after the Great East Japan Earthquake and serving as a steering committee of Decontamination information plaza (joint program of Fukushima Prefecture and the Ministry of the Environment of Japan) providing opportunities of dialogue toward the recovery and restoration of the environment.

Co-author of Denki no gomi Chiso shobun saizensen wo manabu tabi, 2010, Recycle Bunkasha

Co-author of Minna de tsukuru Olympics Paralympics, 2015, Kankyo News